Best Business Models SRI

PORTFOLIO

Eurozone equity indices fell sharply in early August due to exogenous factors amplified by the low summer liquidity (slowdown in the United States, unwinding of the yen/dollar carry trade, rising geopolitical risks). They then rebounded to end the month with a slight gain, supported by a slightly improved economic environment and accommodative statements from central banks in Europe and the United States.

In this context, the Business Models (BM) in Mature Growth stood out, driven by strong results in the insurance sector (Allianz, MunichRe), telecommunications (Deutsche Telekom), and more generally by the often-defensive nature of these stocks in a volatile market environment.

Among the BM in Transition, Iberdrola's good performance was offset by more mixed results in the automotive (Stellantis) and semiconductor sectors (STMicroelectronics).

Within the BM in Recovery, investors welcomed Kerry's sales growth, but were disappointed by Syensqo's outlook, which reflected weaker-than-expected demand.

Finally, among the BM in Rapid Growth, Adyen rose thanks to reassuring forecasts on its growth and operational leverage, while ASML fell due to concerns about the tech sector.

In August, we reduced our exposure to utilities (Iberdrola) and banks (Bawag) to increase our positions in technology (ASM International) and industry (Airbus).

FOCUS: SANOFI

sanofi Long overlooked by investors, Sanofi, the 6th largest pharmaceutical company in the world, is at a turning point in its history. At the end of 2023, the group announced its refocus on vaccines and specialty medicine, centered around immunology, neurology, and rare diseases.

€700 million will be invested in R&D between 2024 and 2025 to prepare for the patent expiry of the blockbuster drug Dupixent, whose sales are still expected to represent 50% of revenue in 2030 (approximately €20 billion).

The number of phase 3 trials is expected to increase by 50% in 2024 and 2025, and the group has identified a record number of twelve potential blockbuster drugs in its clinical pipeline. Together, recent and upcoming launches are projected to contribute an additional €10 billion in sales by 2030. The vaccine division is expected to generate €10 billion in sales by the end of the decade. To complete this strategic refocus, Sanofi, like most of its competitors, will exit its Consumer Healthcare division in 2025 and redistribute part of the proceeds from the sale to shareholders.

After a transition year in 2024, this new strategy gives the group an attractive profile and should enable it to achieve double-digit profit growth starting in 2025.
